Utilita relocates

Energy supplier Utilita has moved to new and larger offices in Winchester, enabling the company to be closer to its partner PRI Limited, the market leader in the development, production and supply of smart electronic meters, software and systems.

Smart meters can revolutionise how households manage their energy consumption, saving money and doing away with estimated bills. PRI has 200,000 smart keypads operating in Northern Ireland, where supply is not deregulated, but the same technology (developed in the 1970's) has yet to be significantly deployed in the mainland UK.
